

The book was found

The Nomad: The Diaries Of Isabelle Eberhardt

Synopsis

In her short life Isabelle Eberhardt (1877-1904) came to be known as the ultimate enigma and representative of everything that seemed dangerous in nineteenth century society. Born the illegitimate daughter of an aristocratic Russian emigree she was a cross-dresser and sensualist, an experienced drug-taker and a transgressor of boundaries: a European reborn in the desert as an Arab and Muslim, a woman who reinvented herself as a man, wandering the Sahara on horseback. A profoundly lonely individual for all her numerous sexual adventures, she roused controversy and was loved and hated in equal measure. A mysterious attempt was made on her life and even her eventual death was ambiguous: she drowned in the desert at the age of twenty-seven.

Book Information

Paperback: 208 pages

Publisher: Interlink Pub Group; Trade Paperback Edition edition (May 1, 2003)

Language: English

ISBN-10: 1566565081

ISBN-13: 978-1566565080

Product Dimensions: 5.3 x 0.6 x 8.2 inches

Shipping Weight: 8.5 ounces (View shipping rates and policies)

Average Customer Review: 3.2 out of 5 stars 11 customer reviews

Best Sellers Rank: #147,863 in Books (See Top 100 in Books) #1 in Books > Travel > Africa > Algeria #8 in Books > History > Africa > Algeria #114 in Books > Biographies & Memoirs > Historical > Africa

Customer Reviews

"...makes riveting reading, and throws light on a desert world that remains obscured by bigotry and ignorance." --The Sunday Times (London)

Born in London, Annette Kobak studied modern languages at Cambridge University and creative writing at the University of East Anglia. She has written an acclaimed biography of the nineteenth-century traveler Isabelle Eberhardt and translated her novel "Vagabond" from the French. She presented the series "The Art of Travel" on BBC Radio 4 and reviews travel books and fiction for the "New York Times Book Review" and "The Times Literary Supplement," She is currently the editor of the magazine "The Cut," "From the Hardcover edition."

This is a nice selection of entries from the short but fascinating life of Isabelle Eberhardt who begins her journal on January 1st, 1900 on an island in the Mediterranean sea with introspection that reminds me of the best of Henry Miller's Tropics and Rimbaud's Season in Hell. Born in Switzerland, Eberhardt traveled widely, in Tangiers and Arabia, often dressed as a boy and converted to the Muslim religion. Tales of travel and sexual adventures abound and make you want to read the complete set of her existing journals. Many of her writings were lost in the flash flood which took her life in 1904. What survived is amazing as well as tantalizing. One of the most unique women in modern times.

This is a book I remembered for 30 years and went back one day recently to find. I was not disappointed although I can see why this book appealed to me so strongly as a 20 year old. Isabelle is an amazing writer. Like the writers of haiku, Isabelle captures the beauty of the desert around her and her feelings about her life in so few words and yet so beautifully. Her love of her adopted country and religion season her view and experience of life. One might wish she had had a happier time of it or been a little better at making a living, but overall this brief book is an amazing contribution to the world by a very unusual person. I highly recommend it.

This book is absolutely sincere and beautiful. A jewel.

I expected to really enjoy this book as I found the subject fascinating and new to me. Unfortunately, the stilted writing and the lack of substance made it unreadable. I think a book about this woman's life with quotes interjected would be more interesting than this rambling collection of thoughts. I'm very disappointed.

Mostly dull and in third person

An exciting book to read.

It is such a pity that Isabelle Eberhardt is so little known because there is something about her that can be found in all of us. She was a free thinking, independent woman at a time when it was hardly the thing to do. She converted to Islam by her own free will but remained her own person, she did not conform to an image of what Islam should be or what others thought it should be nor did she just convert and then melt into the mass of her fellow co-religionists. She maintained much of her anarchist upbringing and lead a life that was free from and restraints. She entered the Qadiri Sufi order and seemed to have taken the order seriously practicing the prayers that she was ordered to perform. She travelled deep into Algeria and wrote of the land and its people with a style that reflects her own free spirit. She would not be confined by anyone and perhaps it was that which brought about an attempt on her life and the anger of the colonial powers who ruled Algeria. She lead a lonely life but seemed to have had several partners. Her life was full of contradictions and this book, her diaries reflects all of that. The life of a young woman who would not be restrained neither by the times that she lived in, the culture that she was from nor the religion that she had chosen to convert to. This book captures the wild mystery of a life that was lived both in the deserts of Africa and amongst the cities of Europe. A beautiful book recommended to anyone who still has the spirit of travel or the love of the writings of someone who chose to live life as they wished to live it.

I agree totally with one of the other reviewers that this is pretty bad. I too, usually enjoy reading and learning about women of the Victorian era that went and did things out of the norm or traveled to exotic locales solo which was also at the time considered not proper. But this, this is just pointless. These rambling essays and random thoughts are so disjointed, uninteresting, all over the place chronologically and half the time just simply make no sense at all. This is the second book of Eberhardt's journal notes that I've read, this one I just couldn't finish. I regret ordering all of her books at once and now do not even plan on reading the others. As I said in the other review that I did for Eberhardt's 'Prisoner of Dunes', if one publisher put all the books into one and put her thoughts or essays in chronological order it would at least present better. However, these entries are just so unimportant, uninteresting, and offer dull, boring, trivial information that has the reader fast asleep. I absolutely love and devour travel narrative books written by or about adventures in the Middle East, but I just could not wade through this drivel. I was highly disappointed after eagerly awaiting to read them, and often while reading kept thinking "what is the point of all this?". I plan to resell all these books I bought and hope to recoup some of my money back.

Download to continue reading...

The Nomad: The Diaries of Isabelle Eberhardt The Passionate Nomad: The Diary of Isabelle Eberhardt (Virago/Beacon Traveler Series) Nomade j'étais: Les années africaines d'Isabelle Eberhardt, 1899-1904 (French Edition) The Vampire Diaries: Stefan's Diaries #1: Origins (Vampire Diaries- Stefan's Diaries) Misadventures in India: The comically rude awakening of an American biodiesel engineer in New Delhi, India (The Travel Diaries of a Modern Nomad Book 1) My Friend Isabelle The Dance Fairies Boxed Set (7 Books) (Rainbow Magic, #1: Bethany the Ballet Fairy; #2: Jade the Disco Fairy; #3: Rebecca the Rock 'n' Roll Fairy; #4: Tasha the Tap Dance Fairy; #5: Jessica the Jazz Fairy; #6: Serena the Salsa Fairy; #7: Isabelle the Ice Dance Fairy) Chester 5000 (Book 2): Isabelle & George (Chester 5000 Xyv) Diaries: Volume 1, 1939-1960 (Isherwood, Christopher Diaries) The Smoking Diaries: The Smoking Diaries, Volume 1 The Royal Diaries: Marie Antoinette, Princess of Versailles, Austria-France, 1769 (The Royal Diaries) Dog Diaries #11: Tiny Tim (Dog Diaries Special Edition) 100% The Vampire Diaries: The Unofficial Guide to the Vampire Diaries [With Poster] Origins (The Vampire Diaries, Stefan's Diaries, Vol. 1) The Vampire Diaries: Stefan's Diaries #1: Origins The Princess Present: A Princess Diaries Book (Princess Diaries, Vol. 6 1/2) Ten Million Steps: Nimblewill Nomad's Epic 10-Month Trek from the Florida Keys to QuÃ©bec (None) The Offshore World: Sovereign Markets, Virtual Places, and Nomad Millionaires The Story of the World, Activity Book 1: Ancient Times - From the Earliest Nomad to the Last Roman Emperor Tales of a Female Nomad: Living at Large in the World

Contact Us

DMCA

Privacy

FAQ & Help