Synopsis

Look at the happy baby. Can you make a happy face? Find the happy baby! This bold, beautiful board book introduces five essential expressions: happy, sad, angry, surprised, and silly. Each is introduced with a large image of a baby's face. Readers are asked to mimic the face, then pick it out from a group of other babies. The very last spread includes all of the expressions from the previous pages, and a mirror so readers can watch themselves make any face they please.

Customer Reviews

"White backgrounds provide maximum contrast for the photos, which readily telegraph each emotion, and an embedded mirror lets children see their own happy, silly, and other emotive expressions." (Publishers Weekly)"The design of the book encourages a dialogue between caregiver and child as young readers indicate their guesses and learn to distinguish among different facial expressions." (Kirkus)

Making Faces is a fairly straight-forward and basic boardbook. Each spread features a baby's face and asks readers to match it to corresponding expressions

ÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã • happy, sad, angry, surprised and silly. The final page features a mirror in which you/your child can practice making faces. At 3, our daughter is really too old for Making Faces, but she loves it nonetheless. I donÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã t know what it is about kids seeing pictures of other kids that make them so excited. This is another one that my husband reads with our daughter at night; in part because itÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã s a fast primer when other book selections push us well past bedtime. I donÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã t think weÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã ll be reading it for too much longer, but I definitely recommend it for younger readers. WeÃƒÂ¢Ã ¬Ã ll be passing our copy on to younger nieces/nephews when we outgrow it.*I received an advanced reader copy from the publisher in exchange for my honest and unbiased review.

Making Faces: A First Book of Emotions is an adorable board book that teaches little ones how to recognize and understand different facial expressions. The use of real faces as the illustrations is a brilliant idea. It helps children identify how a person's face changes through emotions. The fun mirror at the end of the book allows babies to see how the emotional expressions they just learned from the story look on their own faces. They will also be entertained making faces of their own. I highly recommend picking up a copy of Making Faces: A First Book of Emotions.
