Alaska Animal Babies (PAWS IV)

Synopsis

This irresistible entry to the Paws IV series features full-color photos of baby animals, plus information about each species. Pictured in their natural habitats are a wide range of young creatures, from arctic foxes and polar bears to Dall sheep and mountain goats. In all, 24 of Alaska's wild and wonderful inhabitants are included. Brief but captivating descriptions introduce each animal, bringing them to life and familiarizing young audiences with their habits. Did readers know a gray wolf pup bumps his mother's chin to get attention? Or that marmots flatten themselves against the ground when they sense danger? This natural history treat entices animal lovers of all ages.

Northwest Animal Babies: "Breathtaking photos of babies in the wild. This gorgeous book will delight the little ones." --The Seattle Times
"This title is a beautiful introduction to the varied wildlife of the Northwest." --School Library Journal

Deb Vanasse is the author of two young adult novels, Out of the Wilderness and A Distant Enemy. She lives in Fairbanks, AK. International wildlife and nature photographer Gavriel Jecan lives in Seattle.

What more do you need. Baby Animals! This is the best book ever for any child.

Alaska Animal Babies is a great book to give as a gift or for a young child of your own. It is full of interesting information about Alaskan wildlife and cute pictures too. Adults reading this book to their kids might even learn something themselves. Being from Alaska I can say that all the descriptions and facts are well researched and interesting. My girlfriends is also a High School biology teacher and she gives her full endorsement as well. We buy this book for all of our friends/families young kids. Great book by a great author and great photography too!

Book arrived in lesser quality than I expected. I knew the book was used and was supposed to be in fair condition, but it was worse compared to other books listed in the same condition. Fortunately, it is going to a toddler who won't care as much.
