Kathryn Clay has written more than 40 nonfiction children's books about everything from dancing to dinosaurs. She also teaches college writing courses. She has a Master's of Arts in Literature from Minnesota State University, Mankato. Kathryn lives in southern Minnesota with her husband and daughter.

My daughters, ages 2 and 4, enjoy imitating the pictures in this book as I read the words to them; they also have a lot of fun learning the new words this book introduces. The four year old loves to sit and read, but the two year old gets distracted from most books and wants to get up and move. This is one of a few books they really enjoy together. The book opens with, "Make some noise with our feet," which really appeals to the kids, they jump up and start tapping their feet on the floor right away. Actually they really like all four books in this series; the books were a gift to us, and have become favorites.
