Ron Warfield lives close to The Mountain in Eatonville, WA. During a 30-year career as a park ranger/naturalist with the National Park Service, Ron spent time in Yellowstone, Lassen Volcanic, Blue Ridge Parkway, Cape Hatteras, and Crater Lake before beginning a ten-year period as Assistant Chief Naturalist at Mount Rainier. Retired from the Park Service since 1996, Ron and his wife Beckie now work as outdoor photographers and authors. --This text refers to the Perfect Paperback edition.

The photos are great. My children loved the animals on the last pages of the book, of course. I liked how they described the different sides, ie. southeast. south, northeast side, etc. I thought that was different because it allows you to find out what you can find on different areas around the park. It perfectly depicts on what you personally see in the park, in the book.

I met the book's photographer at Mount Rainier National Park, so I bought the book at the gift shop there. It has some great pictures. You can tell from the description of it (32 pages) that it's a tad short.
