Architexts: Volume 5

Synopsis

Five years. Some people would have sought greener pastures by now, but not the employees of Franklin + Newbury Architects. The entire gang is still here, and even more frustrated than ever. Annoying clients. Unresponsive consultants. Meager paychecks. Lackluster projects. Or as we like to call it, another year of the sad reality that is working in an architecture firm. This collection includes all of all the comics from the fifth year of Architexts and some bonus material.

JOKER has a B.S. in Architecture and works full time as an architectural designer. He is still on his open-ended sabbatical from finishing his Master's Degree, and still has little desire to pursue taking the AREs. Joker has worked in several firms since the start of his career, and has always been underpaid. He lives at an undisclosed location with his family. MAVERICK is a Registered Architect with a Master of Architecture degree. Maverick has been working for small architectural firms for his entire career. Maverick is now a member of the AIA (at his firm's expense, of course), and is still trying to figure out what difference it makes. In the little spare time he has, Maverick enjoys reading and sketching--mostly subjects that don't include architecture.
